consumer products

Hirata serves many diverse manufacturing industries, from semiconductors that demand a high degree of precision and cleanliness to more conventional, large manufacturing applications like tire or automobile production. The breadth of our experience is unmatched by others. We often leverage know-how and technology learned in one industry and apply it to another seemingly dissimilar industry. We've demonstrated time and again our ability to raise our customers' productivity, lower costs, and improve return on investment with solutions that are both affordable and durable.

A GLOBAL PRESENCE

Hirata has direct operations in nine countries across the globe. Our local manufacturing, sales, and support capabilities allow us to serve our customers rapidly as they expand or move production to foreign markets. In part this is why many global manufacturers have chosen Hirata for one or more of their key manufacturing processes.

STEADY & PERSISTENT GROWTH

The customer loyalty that Hirata has earned by consistently delivering innovative solutions on time and within budget has allowed us to grow steadily over the years. More importantly, our business performance is resilient. As one industry undergoes a downturn in investment activity, we've enjoyed greater activity in another manufacturing industry. Our balanced and persistent growth assures that we will be here to support and serve you for many years to come.
